INVESTOR MASTER PACKET

Avery Industries LLC

Ethical AI operating company for creator services, accessibility technology, founder-led automation, media/IP systems, and sustainable compute.

Core Story

Avery Industries is building the operating system, revenue engine, and founder brand needed to turn ethical AI into a practical company: Creator Logistics for cash flow, ATLAS for operational leverage, and AveryTech for accessibility products.

Founder: Cole Avery | Prepared for investors, partners, grants, and strategic diligence.

Investment Thesis

1

Primary near-term cash engine: Creator Logistics

1

Operating platform: ATLAS HQ / ATLAS OS

3

Expansion pillars: accessibility, media/IP, sustainable compute

Why this can work

- Services create revenue before large software risk.
- ATLAS reduces founder and operations bottlenecks.
- Ethical AI positioning creates trust and differentiation.
- AveryTech creates mission, grant, and product upside.

What this is not

- Not a vague AI app pitch.
- Not a media empire with no cash path.
- Not a formal securities offering document.
- Not claiming verified traction without evidence attached.

Analyst conclusion: the highest-approval version of Avery Industries is focused: Creator Logistics revenue + ATLAS operating leverage + AveryTech ethical AI/accessibility upside.

Creator Logistics conversion story

High-traffic campaign experience plus reported 5-star editing quality gives the company a practical bridge from attention to service revenue.

Creator Logistics Expansion Readiness

Creator Logistics is the strongest near-term revenue path because it has two years of founder-led operating history and is ready to move from solo execution to team delivery.

2-year solo operating history

Creator Logistics has been operated successfully by Cole Avery for roughly two years as a founder-led service capability. The next growth step is converting solo execution into a repeatable team-based delivery system.

Why expansion is now logical

- Service delivery knowledge has been learned directly by the founder.
- ATLAS now has task, approval, reporting, memory, and delivery systems to support delegation.
- Reported editing quality is strong enough to justify scaling carefully.
- The bottleneck is team capacity, not lack of service direction.

Expansion Need	Use of Investment	Expected Result
Delivery capacity	Hire editor / contractor bench	More client work can be accepted without quality collapse
Operations	Creator Logistics Operations Manager or coordinator	Founder time is freed for sales, systems, and strategy
Sales pipeline	Offer page, outreach system, case studies	More qualified leads and proposals
Proof package	Testimonials, analytics screenshots, portfolio samples	Reported claims become verified claims

Capital Strategy

Use of capital

- Creator Logistics sales and delivery operations.
- First operations manager, editor, or contractor capacity.
- ATLAS dashboard, database, and ethical AI governance.
- Client acquisition, proof, and case studies.
- ATLAS Assist / EchoFrame prototype readiness.

Milestone path

0-30	30-90	90-180	180+
Offer, lead pipeline, delivery tracker.	Clients, editor bench, dashboard.	ATLAS MVP and accessibility plan.	Pilots, grants, product validation.

Valuation and Low-Ball Investment Offer

A practical early ask should be simple: enough capital to expand Creator Logistics and ATLAS, small enough to be believable, and structured to preserve founder control.

$2.5M

Conservative low-end discussion valuation

$250K

Suggested low-ball strategic investment ask

10%

Investor ownership target at that low-end valuation

Best low-ball offer

$250,000 for 10% of Avery Industries LLC, implying a $2.5M post-money valuation, plus a strategic marketing-services side agreement.

This is intentionally founder-friendly enough to preserve control while still giving an early investor meaningful upside.

Alternative 8% version

$250,000 for 8%, implying a $3.125M post-money valuation.

This is the preferred version if the investor gives strong strategic value, flexible terms, or measurable marketing/distribution support.

Offer Component	Recommended Term	Reason
Cash investment	$250,000	Enough to fund team expansion, sales proof, ATLAS dashboard, and prototype readiness without over-raising.
Equity range	8-10%	Meaningful early upside while preserving founder control.
Implied post-money valuation	$2.5M to $3.125M	Conservative for a pre-seed/early operating company with service history and AI/software upside.
Structure to discuss	Equity or post-money SAFE	YC SAFE documents are common early-stage instruments; legal review required.
Marketing add-on	10 years of free or heavily discounted Avery/Creator Logistics marketing support for the investor or partner brand, scoped by annual hours/services	Adds strategic value without immediately increasing cash needs.

Legal and finance note: this is a discussion draft, not an offer to sell securities. Any equity, SAFE, services-for-equity, or marketing-services agreement needs attorney review, tax review, and exact scope limits.

Risk Controls and Governance

Risk	Control
Founder bottleneck	Daily executive reports, Easy Mode, task board, delegation, first hires.
Roadmap sprawl	Revenue-first priority ladder and parked roadmap policy.
AI ethics claims	Use rights-aware, approval-gated, founder-created/owned/approved language until audited.
Unverified metrics	Keep "reported" label until exports, screenshots, reviews, and testimonials are attached.
Compute sustainability	Efficiency, renewable power, cooling research, and edge/home-server roadmap.
Accessibility claims	No medical claims; use research, prototype, pilot, outcome measurement, grant readiness.
